DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Blechner et al (US '617) in view of Usui (US 6,488,074).

Blechner et al disclose an apparatus for casting molten metal, in particular the dental art. The apparatus comprising a crucible, a heating device (75), a pyrometer (40), and a control device (78) to control melting and casting.

However, the controller does not have a database with a plurality of selectable, respectively melting charge material-specific parameter.

Usui discloses the usage of a database in the dental casting art for the purpose of allowing the operator to manually set the detailed conditions and store the condition data in the apparatus to use it in the next and/or subsequent casting work (col. 10, lines 30-38).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to an ordinary skill in the art at the time applicant's invention was made to incorporate a database as taught by Usui, in Blechner et al in order for the operator to manually set the detailed conditions and store the condition data in the apparatus to use it in the next and/or subsequent casting work.

Furthermore, Blechner et al disclose the above claimed invention and control device capable of having a database with parameter sets, whereby associated with each melting charge identification is its own parameter set. The heating device is controlled by the controller. The controller can be used as a calibrator for the pyrometer. The melting charge used can be pure copper. The apparatus can be used to satisfy the claimed invention.

Blechner et al fails to teach the pyrometer can be directed by means of an optical system.

However, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time applicant's invention was made to use optical system as pyrometer, since that would depend on the design expediency.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-20 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
